Treatment should be done twice at intervals of ten days to two weeks but even a single treatment is a big help. In many areas groups of farmers are forming and buying a sprayer between them because they realize the profit they can get from keeping their cattle free of insects such as lice and warble.

Pole Barns

Pole Barns

Just recently I was at a demonstration of the construction of a "pole" barn. The name is just a bit misleading but the building looked good. This type of structure is cheap and easy to build which are two important features. For cattle shelters, machine sheds, feed storage shelters, etc., this type of structure should be considered if you are thinking of building or have to build. Plans for this type of barn are available through the content of the property of the p

Report From Ottawa Correspondent

Conservatives across Canada are extremely busy getting ready for the National Convention being held early in December for the purpose of choosing a new Leader. There will be over 1400 delegates, a little over half elected from the constituencies, the balance composed of Federal Members of Parliament, Senators and officers of the various party organizations across Canada.

This will be the fifth leadership convention held by the Conservatives in thirty years. Those who have already announced their willingness to accept the leadership are: John Dieferbaker, 61-year-old Member for Prince Albert, Sask; Lonald Fleming, 61-year old Member for Toronto Eglinton, and Davie Fulkon, 40-year old Member for Kamloops—all lawyers. From the way things look right now, the taxpayer will be paying through the nose.

For example, the City of Edmonton has figured out that the proposed new plan would cost roughly $500,000 more per year than the existing hospital, program, and would mean a boost of about three mills in the tax rate.

And the puzzling thing is that details of the plan disclosed to date haven't revealed any substantial increase in benefits to be received by hospital patients. The patient will still be called upon to pay $1.50 or more per day.

First word of the proposed new plan came a couple of weeks ago when it was outlined to a meeting of hospital administrators here in the capital city. And last week, it was discussed again at a meeting of the Union of Alberta Municipalities in Lethbridge.

As health department officials explain it, the plan would be an interim arrangement until the federal government is neady to start its hospital and diagnostic program. They say the extra cost to the municipalities would be dropped after the federal government starts contributing to the plan. the plan

But, as some municipal offi-cials are pointing out, Alberta already has a hospital plan un-der which the cost of treatment is shared by the province, the municipality and the patient. It is available to more than 90 per cent of the population.

The government points out that the proposed new plan will fit into the federel scheme with-out any change in administrative details. The answer to that, of course, is why not wait until-Ottawa is ready? Municipal officials are partic-

Municipal officials are particularly annoyed about one feature, which would require the municipality to pay $1.25 per patient day for capital costs.

This capital charge would sapplied even in the case of patients who are the sole responsibility of the province under the existing program,—such as materially patients, pensioners and workmen's compensation board cases.

Sonie officials also fear the new plan will mean municipalities lose comtrol of their own hospitals. It is understood that hospitals would be required to submit their annual budgets to the health department, and the department would control expansion, and services.

You can be sure plenty of discussion went on behind the scenes at the municipal meeting in Leibridge, and there will be more than the sure of the more than the sum of the services. It is possible, of colure, that the government is merely flying a kite in an effort to test public opinion, and it there is too much opposition the idea may be dropped. Some officials also fear the government is still seriously con-sidering some system of giving Albertans a direct share of the money from development of the province's natural resources. He made the statement at his press conference last week. It was the first mention since his budget speech in the legislature three years ago, when he spoke of "cittzens" participation divi-dends."

of 'citizen' participation dividends."

The idea is that citizens should be receiving a direct share instead of indirect benefits through government services. The premier had no idea what form the dividend should take, but he thought it might be a direct payment or a tax discount. He added that while the matter is being studied, nothing definite has been decided so far.

All of which caused one press gallery pundit to remark that Afbertans may need dividends to pay any increased taxes that result from hospital schemes or from the current review of previncial-municipal financial relations.
